Medicare Costs

Medicare premiums vary each year. Go to www.medicare.gov to see the latest costs. Click “Your Medicare Costs” at the top menu.

Part A Premium	Most people don't pay a monthly premium for Part A (sometimes called “premium-free Part A”) if they or their spouse paid Medicare taxes while working.
Part B Premium	Most people pay a monthly premium, which is based on your income.
Part C Premium (Medicare Advantage)	Varies by plan.
Part D Premium (Prescription Drugs)	Varies by plan (higher-income consumers may pay more).
PEHP Medicare Supplement	Rates on Page 9.

Go to www.medicare.gov for the latest Medicare premiums and costs. Click “Your Medicare Costs” at the top menu.

You Decide Original Medicare

The type of Medicare you choose impacts how much you pay out of pocket, what doctors and hospitals you use, and benefits available.

Traditional or Original Medicare

Unless you say otherwise you will have “traditional” or “Original” Medicare, where government pays directly for your healthcare costs. This is the plan that most retirees use.

- » Covers hospital and facilities through Part A; most don't have to pay a monthly premium.
- » Covers doctors and medical services through Part B; you pay a monthly premium.
- » Allows you to go directly to the doctor or hospital when you need care. You don't need to get a referral from your primary care doctor.
- » Defines how much a hospital and doctor can charge you for care.
- » You pay a co-insurance and deductibles for services received.
- » Prescription drug coverage is not included, so add a Part D plan for coverage and to avoid penalties. Paid through a monthly premium.
- » Many retirees add a Medicare Supplement plan to their traditional Medicare coverage to help pay for healthcare costs or improve coverage when traveling, like the PEHP plans do. Learn more about PEHP Medicare Supplement on Pages 8-9.

or Medicare Advantage?

Medicare Advantage

Medicare Advantage plans are run by private insurance companies with different rules, limitations, and costs that impact where and how you receive care.

- » Includes at least the same benefits under Part A and Part B Original Medicare, but can do so with different rules, coverage restrictions, and costs.
- » You must pay Part A monthly premium if you would otherwise under traditional Medicare.
- » You must pay Part B monthly premium.
- » You pay co-insurance and co-pays for services, which vary by plan.
- » Part D or prescription drug coverage is usually included in the benefit.
- » Usually charge a monthly premium in addition to the Part A and Part B premium.
- » Defines a network or service area of hospitals and doctors you can use in certain parts of the country. If you go to a doctor outside of the coverage area it will cost you more.
- » Find & compare Medicare Advantage plans at www.medicare.gov/find-a-plan

Thinking of choosing a Medicare Advantage plan? Ask these questions:

- » What is the monthly premium?
- » What is the deductible? What are the co-pays? How much do I have to pay for care? What is the annual out-of-pocket maximum?
- » Will I be able to use my doctors? Are they in network?
- » Are my preferred hospitals, clinics, specialists, and skilled nursing facilities in the plan's network?
- » Do I have to get approval from my doctor before going to a hospital? Do I need a referral to see a specialist?
- » What extra benefits does the plan include? What are the rules for each?
- » Does the plan cover prescription drugs? Which drugs are covered? What are the costs for drugs under the benefit?
- » What is the service area the plan covers?
- » What coverage is there if I travel in the U.S.? What about traveling outside the U.S.?

i Enrollment instructions When and

The Medicare Initial Enrollment Period is a seven-month period you can apply for Medicare around age 65. Apply three months before your birthday, the month of your birthday, or three months after.

Retired Before Age 65

Medicare begins at age 65, so if you retire earlier, check with your employer about coverage options. Coverage options include: the federal marketplace, COBRA, or possibly retiree coverage through your employer. Ensure you have coverage that bridges the gap until you're Medicare eligible.

Retiring at Age 65

The initial enrollment period is a seven-month period you can apply for Medicare around age 65 (see chart above).

If you want coverage to begin the first day of your birthday month, apply three months before your birthday. Don't delay applying for coverage unless you are certain you have other insurance coverage. It typically takes a month to three months from the time you apply for coverage to begin.

Medicare enrollment is handled through the Social Security Administration (SSA). Apply at your local SSA office, at www.ssa.gov, or by calling 800-772-1213.

Note: If you're eligible for Social Security at 65, but choosing to delay Social Security, you may still enroll in Medicare through the Social Security website.

General Enrollment

If you missed the deadline to sign up during your initial enrollment period, you can sign up during annual General Enrollment (January-March, effective July 1), but it will likely cost you more in monthly premium.

How Do I Enroll in Medicare?

Working 65 and beyond

If you plan to work beyond age 65 and stay on an employer plan, check with Medicare (Social Security) prior to your 65th birthday to avoid penalties. Late penalties won't apply if you sign up during the special enrollment period.

You can delay enrollment in Medicare Part A and Part B if you are covered by an employer group health plan (with 20 or more employees, as defined by the IRS) as an active employee or their spouse.

Special Enrollment Period

Anytime you're covered by a group health plan or during an eight-month period that begins the month after your employment ends or coverage ends, whichever happens first.

COBRA, retiree and individual health plan coverage do not count as employer coverage for the special enrollment period because these plans aren't based on current employment.

You can enroll in Part A and B while working and have dual coverage, but in general it's not worth the additional cost for Part B. Part A is usually premium-free and may provide additional coverage.

Health Savings Accounts (HSA) and Medicare Part A and Part B

Once you are enrolled in Medicare, you can't make or receive contributions to your HSA.

If you'd like to continue contributing to an HSA, talk with your employer benefits manager to see if your employer group health plan is eligible to delay Part A and Part B.

You can delay both Part A and Part B until you (or your spouse) stop working or lose that employer coverage.

Stop making contributions to your HSA six months before you enroll in Part A and Part B or apply for Social Security benefits. Your Medicare coverage will be retroactive up to six months.

Please contact Social Security prior to your 65th birthday to find out what enrollment period is best for you.

Enrolling in Medicare Advantage

Contact the Medicare Advantage plan to enroll during your initial enrollment period. General enrollment each year runs from October to December.

Enrolling in PEHP Medicare Supplement

It's best to enroll in PEHP Medicare Supplement at the same time as traditional Medicare. If you need coverage when you turn 65, call three months prior. If you've already signed up for traditional Medicare and are in your initial enrollment period, call us to enroll in a supplement plan. Otherwise you must wait for the next annual enrollment period. You can also enroll within 60 days of your employer coverage ending. Learn more about PEHP Medicare Supplement on Pages 8-9.
